

WILLIAM RICHARDSON IV AND JANE MUIR RICHARDSON

William Richardson IV was born April 4, 1854 at Newton, Comeslang, Lanarkshire, Scotland, a son of William Richardson III and Joan Fotheringham. He married Jane Howe Muir January 1, 1876. She was born July 5, 1854 in Scotland, a daughter of George and Margaret Hanna Muir.

To William and Jane were born nine children: Annie Kirk, born Aug. 19, 1874; Jennett Lindsay, born Oct. 2, 1876; Walter, born Oct. 17, 1879; James, born Aug. 9, 1880; Rosa Walker, born April 23, 1885; Kate Ash, born Dec. 30, 1888; George, born Aug. 23,

WILLIAM RICHARDSON, JR.
Son of William Richardson and Joanna Walker. Born April 4, 1854, Scotland. Came to Utah Oct. 17, 1863, Captain Rawlins Company. 593

1132

PIONEERS AND PROM

RICHARDSON, WILLIAM (son of William Richardson and Joanna Fotheringham Walker). Born April 4, 1854, in Scotland. Came to Utah Oct. 17, 1863, Captain Rawlins company.

Married Jane Muir Jan. 1, 1874, Heber City, Utah (daughter of George Muir and Margaret Howe of Heber City, pioneers 1856, Captain McCurdy handcart company). She was born July 5, 1854. Their children: Margaret Ann b. Aug. 19, 1874, m. William, J. Kirk; Jeanet b. Oct. 2, 1876, m. Joseph Lindsey; Walter R. b. Oct. 17, 1879, m. Vernie Ohlweiler; James William b. Aug. 9, 1881; Rose Halladay b. April 23, 1885, m. George Walker; Kate b. Dec. 20, 1888, m. Ernest Ast; George Muir b. April 23, 1892; Archie L. b. Jan. 4, 1895, died; Ralph b. June 26, 1897, died. Family home Pleasant Grove, Utah.

High priest; Sunday school superintendent. Farmer and stockraiser. 1132

CENTER CREEK BIOGRAPHIES

1892; Leslie, born Jan. 4, 1894; Ralph, born Sept. 24, 1897.

William Richardson died June 23, 1937 at Vernal, and Jane died May 2, 1927 also at Vernal.

William's parents were among the first 18 people to be baptized by Parley P. Pratt in Scotland in the year 1848. They were devout in their beliefs and desired strongly to come to America. Before William was two he became seriously ill with smallpox, and his parents called in the Elders to give him a blessing. They promised the baby that he would get well and that as he grew up if he kept the commandments he would go to Zion and become a father in Israel.

The family left for America in 1856 and after landing in New York went to Pennsylvania where they stayed for four years working in a coal mine to get money enough to continue their trip west. They finally moved to Illinois where they stayed three years and then left for Utah in June of 1863. They arrived in Salt Lake on October 17, 1863 and were advised by Brigham Young to settle in Heber where they arrived on October 23, 1863. Money was scarce, and William welcomed a chance to earn $1.50 a day working for the Union Pacific Railroad in Echo Canyon.

In 1871 when William was 17 he was called to go to Salt Lake and haul marble for the building of the Salt Lake Temple. He received his clothing and food to eat, but donated his labor and a team of oxen and a wagon. One day his wagon got stuck in a ditch and the wagon tongue was broken. He swore, but was overheard by President Brigham Young who called him aside and told him that if he would be faithful and keep the commandments he would live to see the Temple completed and would work in it. This he literally saw fulfilled as he later was proxy in the temple for hundreds of names.

1081

William's parents moved to the Center Creek area in 1874 and took up a large tract of land near the mouth of the canyon. In 1876 William married Jane Howe Muir and they also settled in the Center area. To make a living for his new family William had to work many different places, and at one time joined a U.S. Army surveying crew and was among the first ones to survey on top of Mt. Timpanogos. William also helped building the Heber Tabernacle and the church and school house at Center Creek.

In the Center Ward, William was called on to help with the recreation, and for many years supervised the dancing, calling the square dances. He would enter into the sports of the young as well as the older groups. He was also called as superintendent of the Sunday School, a position he held for many years.

In October of 1904 William sold his farm in Center and moved to Lindon, Utah County. He continued to be active in the Church there. In 1922 he moved to Vernal and then settled in a little community of Naples, Uintah County.

His wife died on May 2, 1927, and shortly thereafter, William was called on a special mission to do temple work at the Manti Temple. When his call was finished in Manti he returned to Lindon to live with two of his daughters and then went to Vernal where he died just 10 years after his wife's passing.

Jane spent many of her early years in Sanpete County after coming to America from Scotland. She was only two years old when the family crossed the plains, but she walked as much of the way as she could. When her parents moved to Heber she came with the family and it was here that she met and married William in 1874. Their first home had only one room, but as the family grew, rooms were added. They lived in their first home, with additions, for some 35 years.

Jane was known as an industrious person, and would spin yarn, make sweaters, stockings, dresses, underwear, suits, overalls and also temple garments. She also made her own soap and paint, as well as quilts and carpets. Her house was always kept spotless.

She too had an interest in sports and entertainment of all kinds. In her later years she spent much of her time helping her family with their youngsters. Much of her effort was spent with her daughter Annie who had two sets of twins in two years.

1082

HO

Jane worked in the Primary and also the Relief Society in the various wards where the family lived.

WILLIAM RICHARDSON, JR.
Son of William Richardson and Joanna Walker. Born April 4, 1854, Scotland. Came to Utah Oct. 17, 1863, Captain Rawlins Company. 593

WILLIAM RICHARDSON IV AND JANE MUIR RICHARDSON

William Richardson IV was born April 4, 1854 at Newton, Comeslang, Lanarkshire, Scotland, a son of William Richardson III and Joan Fotheringham. He married Jane Howe Muir January 1, 1876. She was born July 5, 1854 in Scotland, a daughter of George and Margaret Hanna Muir.

To William and Jane were born nine children: Annie Kirk, born Aug. 19, 1874; Jennett Lindsay, born Oct. 2, 1876; Walter, born Oct. 17, 1879; James, born Aug. 9, 1880; Rosa Walker, born April 23, 1885; Kate Ash, born Dec. 30, 1888; George, born Aug. 23,

1080

CENTER CREEK BIOGRAPHIES

1892; Leslie, born Jan. 4, 1894; Ralph, born Sept. 24, 1897.

William Richardson died June 23, 1937 at Vernal, and Jane died May 2, 1927 also at Vernal.

William's parents were among the first 18 people to be baptized by Parley P. Pratt in Scotland in the year 1848. They were devout in their beliefs and desired strongly to come to America. Before William was two he became seriously ill with smallpox, and his parents called in the Elders to give him a blessing. They promised the baby that he would get well and that as he grew up if he kept the commandments he would go to Zion and become a father in Israel.

The family left for America in 1856 and after landing in New York went to Pennsylvania where they stayed for four years working in a coal mine to get money enough to continue their trip west. They finally moved to Illinois where they stayed three years and then left for Utah in June of 1863. They arrived in Salt Lake on October 17, 1863 and were advised by Brigham Young to settle in Heber where they arrived on October 23, 1863. Money was scarce, and William welcomed a chance to earn $1.50 a day working for the Union Pacific Railroad in Echo Canyon.

In 1871 when William was 17 he was called to go to Salt Lake and haul marble for the building of the Salt Lake Temple. He received his clothing and food to eat, but donated his labor and a team of oxen and a wagon. One day his wagon got stuck in a ditch and the wagon tongue was broken. He swore, but was overheard by President Brigham Young who called him aside and told him that if he would be faithful and keep the commandments he would live to see the Temple completed and would work in it. This he literally saw fulfilled as he later was proxy in the temple for hundreds of names.

1081

1081

William's parents moved to the Center Creek area in 1874 and took up a large tract of land near the mouth of the canyon. In 1876 William married Jane Howe Muir and they also settled in the Center area. To make a living for his new family William had to work many different places, and at one time joined a U.S. Army surveying crew and was among the first ones to survey on top of Mt. Timpanogos. William also helped building the Heber Tabernacle and the church and school house at Center Creek.

In the Center Ward, William was called on to help with the recreation, and for many years supervised the dancing, calling the square dances. He would enter into the sports of the young as well as the older groups. He was also called as superintendent of the Sunday School, a position he held for many years.

In October of 1904 William sold his farm in Center and moved to Lindon, Utah County. He continued to be active in the Church there. In 1922 he moved to Vernal and then settled in a little community of Naples, Uintah County.

His wife died on May 2, 1927, and shortly thereafter, William was called on a special mission to do temple work at the Manti Temple. When his call was finished in Manti he returned to Lindon to live with two of his daughters and then went to Vernal where he died just 10 years after his wife's passing.

Jane spent many of her early years in Sanpete County after coming to America from Scotland. She was only two years old when the family crossed the plains, but she walked as much of the way as she could. When her parents moved to Heber she came with the family and it was here that she met and married William in 1874. Their first home had only one room, but as the family grew, rooms were added. They lived in their first home, with additions, for some 35 years.

Jane was known as an industrious person, and would spin yarn, make sweaters, stockings, dresses, underwear, suits, overalls and also temple garments. She also made her own soap and paint, as well as quilts and carpets. Her house was always kept spotless.

She too had an interest in sports and entertainment of all kinds. In her later years she spent much of her time helping her family with their youngsters. Much of her effort was spent with her daughter Annie who had two sets of twins in two years.

1082

HOV

Jane worked in the Primary and also the Relief Society in the various wards where the family lived.